

I object vehemently to Pappas Telecasting Companies' 'donation' of $325,000 in airtime to Republican candidates. This is yet another example of a powerful media group abusing its privileged access to the public airwaves.

Who is going to protect us, the ordinary citizens when big conglomerates decide to use their corporate muscle to put public officials of their own choosing in positions of power and ensure that their interests are taken cared of even if it goes against the public good?

It is with great apprehension that I plead with the FCC to sanction these attempts at subverting the public trust. History is replete with examples of people who do not want to play by the rules. It is our task to be forever vigilant in this never ending tug-o-war between freedom fighters and oppressors.

Thank you.
